RHB GLOBAL MACRO OPPORTUNITIES FUND - RM CLASS

The Fund aims to achieve capital appreciation above its benchmark by investing in one target fund, i.e. JPMorgan Investment Funds – Global Macro Opportunities Fund.

MANAGER'S COMMENTSMONTH IN REVIEW

In November, equity markets were driven by an unwinding of well-owned positions that had delivered strong returns, while macro fundamentals continued to look favourable. The MSCI World Index rose 1.4% and the JPM Global GBI was up 0.1% (hedged to EUR).

The global growth backdrop remained supportive, as data demonstrated broad-based strength and company earnings were healthy, which saw our long financials equity strategy contribute positively to performance. Despite the encouraging growth backdrop, global bond yields remained unchanged and volatility was low. In this environment, our long US dollar vs. short high-yielding emerging market currency strategies detracted from performance, as did our long US volatility strategy, held to cushion the portfolio in the event of a market downturn.

Equity investors rotated out of well-owned sectors that have delivered strong returns this year. As a result, the information technology sector performed poorly, while consumer staples rallied, with both moves negatively impacting portfolio positioning. However, our long global semiconductor manufacturers were a bright spot within information technology, delivering positive performance. These names benefited from strong earnings and positive industry signals such as merger activity.

LOOKING AHEAD

Strong secular drivers and positive company news continue to support the information technology sector, leading us to maintain conviction in these equity strategies. However, we bought some temporary protection for the portfolio in the event of any further short-term rotation away from the sector.

We are optimistic about the strength of the global growth impulse, but continue to monitor for potential risks that may come from tighter financial conditions or an external shock.
