RHB GLOBAL MACRO OPPORTUNITIES FUND - USD CLASS

The Fund aims to achieve capital appreciation above its benchmark by investing in one target fund, i.e. JPMorgan Investment Funds – Global Macro Opportunities Fund.

MANAGER'S COMMENTSMONTH IN REVIEW

January saw continued strength in global growth amid some signs of rising inflation, giving central banks more confidence in the improving backdrop. The MSCI World Index rose 3.5%, while JPM Global GBI fell 0.9% (both hedged to EUR). The Target Fund delivered a strong positive return.

Growth remains broad-based and continues to demonstrate strong momentum, with encouraging Purchasing Managers' Indices globally and upward revisions to growth forecasts. In this risk-on environment, the Target Fund Manager took advantage of the move higher in equity markets by taking profit on some of their long equity strategies that had performed well, such as Chinese and US financials and global materials.

Inflation expectations rose amid continued strong growth data, prompting more hawkish central bank communications in the US and Europe. Expectations were further heightened by a pick-up in several measures of US wages to cycle highs, causing global bond yields to move higher. Strategies held to reflect the Target Fund Manager views of higher yields, namely short exposure to defensive sectors, performed well, including their short US utilities and consumer staples equity strategies.

LOOKING AHEAD

The Target Fund Manager reduced aggregate portfolio risk in the second half of the month as the speed and magnitude of the move higher in equity markets caused valuations to become less attractive. The Target Fund Manager took profit on long cash equity strategies, and added to their long US volatility and long US large cap put options strategies.

The Target Fund Manager is comfortable with the current level of portfolio risk and will look to take advantage of opportunities arising from increased market volatility.
