MANAGER'S COMMENTSMARKET REVIEW

US Treasury Bond (“UST”) yields whipsawed throughout most of the month of March 2018 before bull flattening toward the month and 2018 quarter end as market participants were dealing with a stellar non-farm payroll (NFP) report of 313k vs 239k for the previous month, but were buffeted by talks of a possible trade war stemming from the Trump administration’s announcement of imposing tariffs of 25% on steel and 10% on aluminum. These coupled with quarter end buying led treasuries to bull flatten massively toward the end of the month. At the end of March close, the 2-, 5-, 10- and 30-year UST were last traded at 2.266% (Feb-2018: 2.25% +1bp), 2.562% (2.64%; -8bps), 2.74% (2.861%; -12bps) and 2.97% (3.124%; -15bps) respectively.

In terms of significant economic data release, the Institute of Supply Management (“ISM”) Manufacturing Index, the barometer for national factory activity reached a new peak for February 2018 at 60.8 (highest reading since May 2004). At the early part of the month, the Nonfarm Payrolls (“NFP”) in the United States was released and the NFP number for February 2018 surpassed expectations and beat the previous Month’s number by over 100k. The NFP in February added 313,000 new jobs against 205,000 consensus estimate. Average Hourly Earnings however fell slightly below expectations, registering 2.6% versus 2.8% consensus estimation and a strong print of 2.9% the prior month. On inflation, the United States Consumer Price Index (“CPI”) rose 0.2% in February 2018, lower than last month’s 0.5% print. Headline CPI rose 2.2% on an annualized basis in line with expectations while core CPI increased 1.8% against estimates of 1.8%. On March 21-22, Jerome Powell’s first Federal Open Market Committee (“FOMC”) as Fed Chair saw The Fed raising rates by 25bps, with the upper bound moving to 1.75% as fully expected by the market. Whilst the 2018 dot plot remained unchanged (indicating three rate hikes in 2018), the plots for 2019 and 2020 rate increases both steepened slightly. US Treasuries reacted with 10y Benchmark breaking above 2.90%, however retaliatory action by China to the US tariffs which were revealed later on to be clearly targeted at China’s large trade surplus against the US stoked fears of a trade war. Further to this, Facebook led tech stocks lower on breaking news that Cambridge Analytica, a political consulting firm associated with Donald Trump’s presidential campaign, gained access to the personal data of about 50 million Facebook users.
