MANAGER'S COMMENTS

MARKET REVIEW

Emerging market (EM) fixed income witnessed a challenging month in the recent past, hurt by a combination of higher US interest rates, a stronger dollar and broad based risk aversion. Even a jump in oil prices did little to boost asset values from oil exporting countries. The selloff in EM assets occurred even as EM macroeconomic fundamentals which continued to remain healthy.

10-year US Treasury (UST) yields ended the month at 2.95%, wider from the prior month's 2.74%, while the US treasury curve continued to flatten. The likeliest explanation for the yield curve's current flattening is that markets are less confident in the US Federal Reserve's intention to raise rates without inflation dipping. The DXY or dollar cross index, a broad based proxy for USD strength ended the month +2.1% stronger. The extra yield investors demand to own EM sovereign bonds over US Treasuries ended the month 19 bps wider at 313 bps. EM fixed income cumulative flows saw a reversal and ended the month at US$ 9.4 billion (vs Mar: US$10.5 billion).

STRATEGY

The Target Fund Manager continues to prefer highly yielding names in Latin America, Asian sovereigns and quasi sovereigns with improving fundamentals, African names as well as countries with low financing needs such as Chile and Panama. The Target Fund Manager expects stable EM fundamentals and attractive spreads vis a vis other asset classes to somewhat mitigate potential geopolitical uncertainties. The Target Fund Manager finds a number of positive idiosyncratic stories compelling such as those of South Africa and Ukraine.

Low interest rates in developed markets – negative in the case of Europe and Japan and near or at historical lows in other countries are likely to offer support for emerging markets fixed income. However, markets have only recently started to price in a series of risks emanating either directly or indirectly from the US – such as protectionism and potentially higher inflation.

Stronger EM fundamentals now compared to five years ago should provide a buffer that prevents a significant sell-off like the taper tantrum in 2013. However, the Target Fund Manager remains mindful of the impact a strong dollar could have on EM. The Target Fund Manager believes that once the initial adjustment to potentially higher short-term core yields is complete, a more structural view on market volatility will be supported by continued strong bid for EM. Overall, the Target Fund Manager continues to like EM bonds, primarily for their carry and for the asset class' favorable risk-adjusted returns over the long-term.

DISCLAIMER:

Based on the fund's portfolio returns as at 15 April 2018, the Volatility Factor (VF) for this fund is 8.4 and is classified as "High". (source: Lipper) "High" includes funds with VF that are above 8.0 but not more than 10.6 (source: Lipper). The VF means there is a possibility for the fund in generating an upside return or downside return around this VF. The Volatility Class (VC) is assigned by Lipper based on quintile ranks of VF for qualified funds. VF is subject to monthly revision and VC will be revised every six months. The fund's portfolio may have changed since this date and there is no guarantee that the fund will continue to have the same VF or VC in the future. Presently, only funds launched in the market for at least 36 months will display the VF and its VC. The VC referred to was dated 31 December 2017 which is calculated once every six months and is valid until its next calculation date, i.e. 30 June 2018.
