MANAGER'S COMMENTS

MARKET REVIEW

Investors priced in uncertainties owing to conflicting decision making signals from US President Donald Trump. Markets slumped on protectionist trade rhetoric and cheered when the meeting with North Korean leader Kim came back on the cards. Asian stocks also took cue from their bearish counterparts in Europe, as the Italy's political situation to elect a government remained inconclusive by the end of the month.

Across the sectors, healthcare emerged as the top performer. Other outperformers were consumer discretionary, information technology and utilities. Underperforming sectors fell into red particularly for financials, materials and industrials.

Economic data painted a momentum which was slowing down in regions outside of the US. While Chinese manufacturing PMI figure rose to 51.9, the Caixin figure remained flat at 51.1. Production for other Asian regions slowed-India declined from the previous month while Japan manufacturing activity sank to a nine-month low.

The Greater China region fared better than their Asian peers, and shrugged off the geopolitical concerns. China outperformed as markets rejoiced the plan from the US and China to reduce the bilateral trade imbalance. The country also announced measures to slash import tariffs on a wide range of consumer goods. Taiwan markets managed to outperform even technology driven sell-offs continue. Hong Kong rallied around economic growth figures which beat expectations.

Korean markets suffered during the month. Much optimism from the meeting of the leaders of the two Koreas in April subsided as foreign investors turned from long term prospects and focused on a slower earnings momentum for corporates.

The rout in emerging markets hit Asian markets which saw their currencies coming under pressure from a strengthening US dollar and rising US yields. India was not spared as the NIFTY dived further and only the defensive sectors remained in the black. Over in ASEAN, all markets sank into the red with the exception of Thailand. The Bank of Indonesia hiked rates twice during the month and its sovereign credit rating from Standard and Poor's was kept at BBB- with a stable outlook. Thanks to positive economic conditions, Thailand outperformed. The Philippines continued to underperform with declining overseas foreign worker remittances and rising inflation from higher oil prices. All sectors in Singapore went into losses except for consumer discretionary. Malaysia was the biggest loser. A set of new policy risks emerged from scrapped infrastructure plans, tighter scrutiny of business projects from the new government and a rescinding of previously proposed goods and services tax added to market jitters.
