MANAGER'S COMMENTS

MARKET OVERVIEW

Asia ex Japan equities recorded a positive return in April as trade sanction rhetoric appeared to soften. Singapore and Hong Kong were both led higher by financials and outperformed. India returned positively as the market recovered from recent weakness while Korean gained following pledges by North and South Korean leaders to agree a formal end to the war on the peninsula. China posted slightly positive returns but lagged other markets, attributable in part to weakness from internet and e-commerce stocks. In contrast, Indonesia underperformed given its sensitivity to the tightening of global liquidity. In Taiwan, semiconductor stocks led the market lower amid concern over slowing global smartphone sales.

In fixed income, Asian credit fell as US Treasury yields resumed an upward path in April amid a continued hawkish tone from the US Federal Reserve (Fed) and strengthening inflation data. US government 10-year yields rose from 2.7% to close to 3% over the month. Both investment grade and high yield credit declined, with the latter underperforming on the deterioration of sentiment towards emerging markets. Indonesia was amongst the worst performers given its susceptibility to flows from non-Asian investors. Asian local currency bonds also fell on the back of the broad USD strength.

Over the month, the Singapore dollar fell by -1.0% against the US dollar.
