MANAGER'S COMMENTS

MARKET OVERVIEW

Asia ex-Japan equities declined in June as global trade tensions led to a broad market sell-off. South-east Asia countries underperformed given profit-taking pressure from investors, while the ongoing liquidity tightening given the rising USD also weighed on the markets. Chinese and Hong Kong equities retreated too as investors' risk appetite has been dampened by downbeat China economic data alongside Chinese yuan depreciation. India and Taiwan held-up better than other regional markets but still finished in negative territory.

In fixed income, Asian USD credit and Asian local currency bonds retreated because of a combination of rising US dollar, slightly hawkish Federal Reserve (Fed) and trade tensions. US Treasury bond yields initially rose after the Fed raised interest rates by 25 basis points for the second time this year but ended the month largely flat as concerns about slower global growth drove investors to the relative safety of government debt. Investment grade credit performed better than high yield as credit spreads widened to recent highs amid worries over Chinese defaults and refinancing risks of China corporates against the backdrop of appreciating US dollar. Within local currency bonds, Indonesia was the worst performer after the central bank raised its policy rate again following last month's two rate hikes.

Over the month, the Singapore dollar fell by -1.8% against the US dollar.
