MANAGER'S COMMENTS

MARKET OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Moving ahead, the Target Fund Manager is inclined to stay neutral with a tilt towards slightly positive positioning and focus remains on gathering defensive carry. The recent sharp rebound had indicated that previous massive indiscriminating sell-off should not be prolonged unless evidenced by deteriorating fundamentals. Although attractiveness in valuation had diminished after this rally, there are still pockets of opportunities to gather defensive carry. Hence, understanding the trade flows seen during recent huge market movement helped market participants to better position and also reduce the excessive speculative positions within the market which will bode well for the Asian credit market. Nevertheless, there remains headwinds such as the on-going global trade tussle, continual normalisation by global central banks, rising US interest rates, China's on-going financial reforms and impending bonds refinancing issuances, which will likely deter Asian credit spreads to tread back towards its early 2018's lows. All in, the Target Fund Manager opined that the total returns on credit bonds should continue to outweigh the risk if the Target Fund Manager is able to stay invested and ride through this period.

Technical flows will likely remain as the main catalyst to drive market performance especially the pace of bond issuances. The market will look out for how China balances between controlling excessive leverage and supporting corporate financial needs. As at end July, the average Asian credit spread stood at about 251 bps which is about 1 bps wider (previous month was 15 bps narrower) than its three-year historical average of 252 bps. On a longer historical basis, current spread is 36 bps wider than its 2010's low of 215 bps. Overall, the Target Fund Manager remains inclined to stay overweight in the non-investment grade segment as this segment offers a higher carry and yet minimal impact from rising US interest rates. The Target Fund Manager believes the need for yield remains while credit differentiation is paramount. On the duration strategy, the Target Fund Manager will be staying broadly neutral in overall duration. That said, the Target Fund Manager may engage in tactical duration positioning.
