MANAGER'S COMMENTS

MARKET REVIEW

China property shares generally outperformed the broader market, MSCI China produced strong interim earnings results, which was well perceived by investors. A large number of developers left their full year contracted sales targets unchanged and guided on lower contracted sales growth targets for 2019. On the policy side, tightening measures such as ceiling sales price for new unit launches were implemented at provincial cities to curb overall nation housing price growth. On the macro-side, nationwide residential property sales volume and sales value increased by 4.2% and 16.2% year-on-year respectively during the first seven months of 2018.

Hong Kong property shares underperformed in both the broader HK and Mainland Chinese market. Most developers continued to report solid interim results; but the US interest rates hike and policy tightening measures are major concerns. Moving forward, we expect developers to increase the supply of nano flats in order to tackle housing affordability issues. On the macro front, growth in overall residential home prices slowed with the Centa-City Leading Index flattening on a month-to-month basis for August 2018.

Within the smaller ASEAN markets, the Philippines property sector performed in line with the market. Ayala Land received the approval from Philippine Competition Commission to purchase Antel's land and assets in Makati, Metro Manila. We remain constructive in Indonesia and the Philippines as domestic demand remains resilient and infrastructure development will boost land and asset prices.

MARKET OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

While we maintain our positive view on Chinese property for a long horizon, we remain slightly cautious in near terms. Curbing housing price from rising too rapidly will remain a top agenda from the government's point of view. Domestic liquidity is also undergoing a tightening cycle. We expect sector performances to remain diversified. Big companies with ample funding resources, strong balance sheets and balanced regional coverage will be able to gain more market share. From the interim results, major developers are on track to achieve their sales targets. We will selectively accumulate quality names.

In Hong Kong, we expect the property sector to cool down slightly, as the government launched several new measures to increase the supply of public housings and imposed tax on unsold inventories. We favour developers and landlords with abundant land reserves and stable income from investment properties.

We remain selective in ASEAN property stocks. The Philippines is our preferred market as demand for residential units remain strong in urban areas outside Metro Manila. In Singapore, we continue to prefer property developers, supported by new launches and reasonable real estate prices.
