RHB EMERGING INCOME FUND - USD

MANAGER'S COMMENTS

MARKET REVIEW

Emerging market (EM) equities were slightly negative with regional performance continuing to diverge. Fiscal reform hopes in Argentina, easing political concerns in Brazil, and Turkey's above expectation rate hike were all welcomed by markets. India was a key headwind in Asia as credit and liquidity issues in the financial sector were exacerbated by inflation concerns. China also modestly underperformed as previously announced tariffs were implemented. Within fixed income, a stabilising US dollar supported EM debt, with local currency bonds rebounding following a challenging few months. The Target Fund's yield at 30 September 2018 was 4.2% p.a.

PORTFOLIO ACTIVITY

Overall the Target Fund Manager maintains a selective approach, carefully differentiating between EM assets classes as the cycle matures. Divergent growth and geopolitical related volatility are creating opportunities, although elections in Brazil and US mid-terms are resulting in short-term volatility.

MARKET OUTLOOK

Given increasing divergence between countries, the Target Fund Manager thinks it is more important than ever to adopt a precise, focused, granular approach, carefully differentiating between EM assets classes as the cycle matures. Recent market turbulence has created some compelling opportunities across asset classes and the Target Fund Manager will continue to carefully monitor these areas.
