RHB GLOBAL MACRO OPPORTUNITIES FUND - RM CLASS

The Fund aims to achieve capital appreciation above its benchmark by investing in one target fund, i.e. JPMorgan Investment Funds – Global Macro Opportunities Fund.

MANAGER'S COMMENTS*MONTH IN REVIEW

Equity markets moved higher – though with regional dispersion – and bond markets fell in September amid strong US data and despite an escalation in USChina trade actions. The MSCI World Index rose 0.6% and the J.P. Morgan Global GBI fell 0.8% (both hedged to euro), while Target Fund performance was negative.

US strength was evident in consumer data and wage inflation, contributing to a continued backdrop of solid economic growth that supported another interest rate hike from the Federal Reserve. US yields rose and the US dollar outperformed versus the Japanese yen, which led Japanese equity to rally – though the Target Fund Manager's long Japan equity detracted on underperformance from semiconductors, to which the Target Fund Manager reduced exposure in favour of adding to areas of technology with higher quality and growth characteristics.

The benign market reaction to global growth dispersion and trade actions was negative for Target Fund positioning. The Target Fund Manager's defensive strategies detracted from performance, including the Target Fund Manager's short Japan equity exposures; risk-off US exposures such as long US duration, long US volatility and long US large cap put options; and long US dollar versus short emerging market currencies. However, the Target Fund Manager's defensive short Europe equity strategies added value amid negative developments on the Italian budget.

Brent Crude rose to levels not seen since 2014, causing the Target Fund Manager's long energy equity strategy to contribute positively to performance. The Target Fund Manager increased exposure to energy names that the Target Fund Manager believes will benefit from continued favourable supply dynamics and as the sector typically performs better in late cycle.

LOOKING AHEAD

The Target Fund Manager remains cautiously positioned as trade tensions continue and emerging market assets remain vulnerable to weaker global growth, rising US interest rates and higher oil prices.

The Target Fund Manager continues to add exposure in areas in which the Target Fund Manager has high conviction, including their long energy strategy and consultants, internet and payments companies within tech, and retain their long US dollar versus short emerging market currencies exposure.
