MANAGER'S COMMENTS

MARKET OVERVIEW

The S&P 500 index gained 0.57% in September, bringing total Q3 returns to 7.71% (total returns, in USD). Market volatility was high over the quarter, driven by both the trade rhetoric between the US and China as well as other key US allies, and strong US macro data relative to other developed and emerging markets. US equities saw a strong rally in July and August, buoyed by strong domestic data, which outweighed headwinds posed by moderating global growth as well as escalating trade and diplomatic tensions. The US economy grew 4.1% year-over-year (YoY) in the second quarter, its fastest annual pace since 2004. US economic data continued to reach cycle highs in September. 201,000 jobs were added in August and the unemployment rate held steady at a cycle low of 3.9%. US core personal consumption expenditures (PCE) inflation increased 1.96% YoY, remaining around the Federal Reserve (Fed)'s 2% target for the fourth month in a row. Against this backdrop of solid growth, near-target inflation and healthy monthly job gains, the Fed raised rates by another 0.25% and signalled another rate hike this year, in-line with market expectations. The successful outcome of NAFTA negotiations near month-end was also supportive of market sentiment. The best performing sectors over the quarter were Health Care, Information Technology and Industrials, while the worst performing sectors were Materials, Energy and Real Estate.

MARKET OUTLOOK

The Target Fund Manager continues to believe that equities are more attractive than other asset classes in the current growth environment. The Target Fund Manager believes continued strong economic conditions domestically may act as a catalyst for revenue-driven earnings growth, presenting a positive backdrop for equities. Despite the duration of the current bull market extending for a record nine years, the Target Fund Manager continues to believe that valuations are reasonable given the many potential tailwinds. The Target Fund Manager does, however, continue to monitor global trade negotiations as current rhetoric could possibly materialize into new policy, potentially disrupting equity market momentum.

Increased global uncertainties and trade tensions have created more volatility in equity markets throughout the year. Given this backdrop, the Target Fund Manager believes a thorough understanding of both market and company specific variables is crucial to navigating the ever-changing investment landscape. Changing regulatory environment, normalizing monetary policy, and continued concerns over trade tensions are just a few of the many macro themes that they, as active managers, are closely monitoring. The Target Fund Manager feels these factors may provide a favourable environment for active management and believe that their time-tested approach of bottom-up stock picking has the potential to deliver strong relative returns.
