MANAGER'S COMMENTS
MARKET REVIEW

The Target Fund Manager entered March of 2020 with accelerating fears surrounding Covid-19's impact on global growth before steep falls in crude prices, triggered by the breakdown of talks between Russia and OPEC, exacerbated investor nervousness, sending markets firmly into the red.

As borders closed and the severity of Covid-19 became more apparent, policy makers scrambled with a swathe of stimulus measures. Emerging market (EM) equities were firmly down, with US dollar strength a further headwind to both equity and local currency debt returns.

EMs most susceptible to external pressure underperformed, notably Argentina, Brazil, South Africa and India. Brazilian equities were particularly hard hit, with currency weakness and crude oil prices exacerbating falls. By contrast, Chinese equities were resilient as the number of active Covid-19 cases fell and the country began to get back to work. Other Asian markets also held up well in relative terms, as the epicentre of the outbreak moved to Europe. South Korea, where the response to Covid-19 has been deemed as more successful, and Taiwan, which has seen fewer cases, both outperformed.

Whilst March 2020 will go down as one of the most dramatic on record, the speed and size of the policy response so far has helped to provide a buffer from the worst of the effects of these unprecedented circumstances.

MARKET OUTLOOK

Looking forward, EM policymakers have responded swiftly and strongly with monetary and fiscal measures to the virus outbreak and the Target Fund Manager sees space for more policy easing on the horizon. This accommodative stance has been mirrored by their developed market counterparts.

While the Target Fund Manager don't believe, however, that low interest rates alone will re-ignite an EM economic recovery, the focus on liquidity provision is important for credit and signalling effect is important for risk assets. In addition, the ongoing gradual opening up of China, and the effectiveness of healthcare policies in Korea, provide grounds for cautious optimism.

The Target Fund Manager continues to expect substantial divergence across emerging market regions, asset classes and securities as the year progresses, and the Target Fund Manager believes the Target Fund Manager is well positioned to capitalise on these idiosyncratic opportunities.

Overall, the Target Fund Manager continues to believe the Target Fund is well positioned to capture the considerable EM growth and income opportunities, with a smoother path of returns than equities.
