MANAGER'S COMMENTS
MARKET REVIEW

Emerging markets rebounded in April, buoyed by an expansion of stimulus from global central banks and signs of a flattening or reduction in the rate of new Covid-19 cases in Europe and the US.

Despite sobering economic data illustrating the severity of the lockdown, emerging market equities rallied, led by the export sensitive markets of Indonesia and Taiwan. The governor of the Reserve Bank of India channelled his inner Draghi, announcing that it would do "whatever it takes" to support the economy, pushing one of the year's worst performers up 20%. By contrast, Mexico and Turkey registered more modest gains and were the weakest index markets. Currency weakness was a drag on returns in both markets, notably Turkey.

Fixed income markets were positive, albeit less eventful, with both hard and local currency debt rising 2% and 4% respectively.

MARKET OUTLOOK

The flattening of the coronavirus infection rates is welcome news but the Target Fund Manager is also cognisant that, for now, the only way of containing the virus is through reduced levels of economic activity. Just as the Target Fund Manager needs to be patient about their working and living arrangements, they believe that some patience is still needed before significantly increasing their exposure to cyclical risk.

The Target Fund Manager is comfortable with their current positioning, and overall, retain a bias for quality which is well placed to continue to capture any rebound, whilst providing some comfort should the situation deteriorate.
