MANAGER'S COMMENTS

MONTH IN REVIEW

Global equity markets ended June firmly in positive territory amid continued improvement in economic data and despite a virus resurgence concentrated primarily in Southern US states. The MSCI World Index was up 2.3%, and the JPM GBI Index rose 0.2% (hedged to euro).

Economic data continued to surprise to the upside, particularly in the US and Europe. The May and June Global Purchasing Managers' Indices indicated a sharper-than-expected rebound, albeit from a very low base. US payrolls were significantly better than expected, with evidence of re-hiring in the hardest hit sectors. To reflect the Target Fund Manager's view of early-stage recovery, the Target Fund Manager tilted towards cyclical equity by adding select names in industrials and consumer discretionary. The Target Fund Manager also added a basket of single stock options in companies that were badly impacted by the virus, which have the potential to rebound strongly in a recovery. The Target Fund Manager's long equity strategies contributed positively to performance, while their short US and emerging market futures detracted.

Major central banks announced further supportive measures. The European Central Bank increased the size of its Pandemic Emergency Purchase Programme and extended the term by six months, while the Federal Open Market Committee minutes suggested rates will be kept on hold until at least 2022. To reflect continued monetary accommodation globally and low inflationary pressure, the Target Fund Manager added to their emerging market (EM) debt exposure in India and Peru. The Target Fund Manager also introduced a long Italian BTPs versus short German Bunds strategy as Italian default risk has reduced, which should encourage convergence.

A resurgence in new infections of the virus took hold, particularly in southern US states following the easing of lockdown measures, which were mostly halted or reversed. This was a potential scenario that the Target Fund Manager had been monitoring and as the Target Fund Manager saw the increase in virus cases unfold they retained their long Japanese yen versus short US dollar and long gold strategies. However, these detracted slightly as the quick containment response eased investor concerns. With renewed mobility restrictions threatening the recovery, in addition to rising cases in many EM countries, the Target Fund Manager maintains the aforementioned strategies for their defensive properties.

LOOKING AHEAD

As the world moves into recovery, the Target Fund Manager retains a modest level of equity risk, leaning further into cyclical areas, while holding complementary strategies across fixed income, currency and gold, but remain flexible as the macro evolves.

The Target Fund Manager continues to monitor the aggressiveness of the virus resurgence in the US and rising cases in certain EM countries, and the potential for them to hamper the recovery, as well as considering any vaccine developments, which could significantly direct the outlook. The Target Fund Manager is also monitoring developments in the US Presidential election, where Biden is emerging as a strong contender to President Trump.
