MANAGER'S COMMENTS
GLOBAL MARKET REVIEW

Fixed-income assets rallied in July, extending gains for the fourth month in a row. Central banks kept short-term interest rates anchored, and investors continued to support risk assets in the search for yield. COVID-19 cases continued to rage across most of the globe, particularly in the US, as pharmaceutical companies raced to advance late-stage trials on numerous promising vaccines and treatments to fight the global pandemic.

The US Federal Reserve (the Fed) voted to keep short-term interest rates near zero for the foreseeable future. The Fed also extended its mostly untapped emergency lending facilities—which were originally slated to end in September—until the end of the year. Fed Chair Powell remarked, “We’ve got to hope for the best and plan for the worst.”

Global treasury returns were positive as yield curves fell and flattened in most developed-market (DM) countries. Italian 10-year bond yields fell by 25 basis points (b.p.) to 1.01% on the back of continued European Central Bank support from the Pandemic Emergency Purchase Programme and the announcement of the Next Generation European Union fund. Spanish 10-year bond yields also compressed, ending the period 12 b.p. lower at 0.34%. Ten-year German Bund rates fell by 7 b.p. to -0.53%. Japanese 10-year government bonds remained anchored near 0 at 0.01%. The yield on the 10-year US Treasury fell by 13 b.p. to 0.53% as US virus cases increased at an alarming rate, threatening the trajectory of the US economic recovery.

Performance in emerging-market (EM) bonds was positive, led by hard-currency sovereign bonds. EM hard-currency sovereigns posted returns of 3.71% in the EMBI Global Diversified Index. EM corporates were also positive, returning 2.32% in the CEMBI Broad Diversified Index. The US dollar retreated significantly against all DM and many EM currencies as market participants factored in potentially faster recoveries in Europe and Asia and as demand for US-dollar emergency reserves fell among most central banks.

Nongovernment sector returns were strong. Globally, investment-grade and high-yield corporate bonds continued to rally. The Bloomberg Barclays US Corporate High Yield Index returned 4.69%, with energy up the most, returning 6.04%, while REITS returned 2.42%.

In securitized assets, commercial mortgage-backed securities (CMBS) rose modestly, while CMBX.6 had mixed performance, depending on the tranche. CRTs were more volatile following a strong rebound in June.

Brent crude oil advanced 5.2%, even as OPEC+ began to modestly roll back production cuts. Copper prices also firmed, gaining 5.7%. Gold continued to climb, about 10%, making new highs on its ascent to nearly US$2,000 per ounce.
